

Empowering Women to Take Action

The EveryBODY Covered campaign is working to ensure that everybody has access to evidence-based obesity care options. Comprehensive obesity care should be covered just as care for other chronic diseases is covered.

GET INVOLVED

Take the Pledge for Obesity Care Coverage

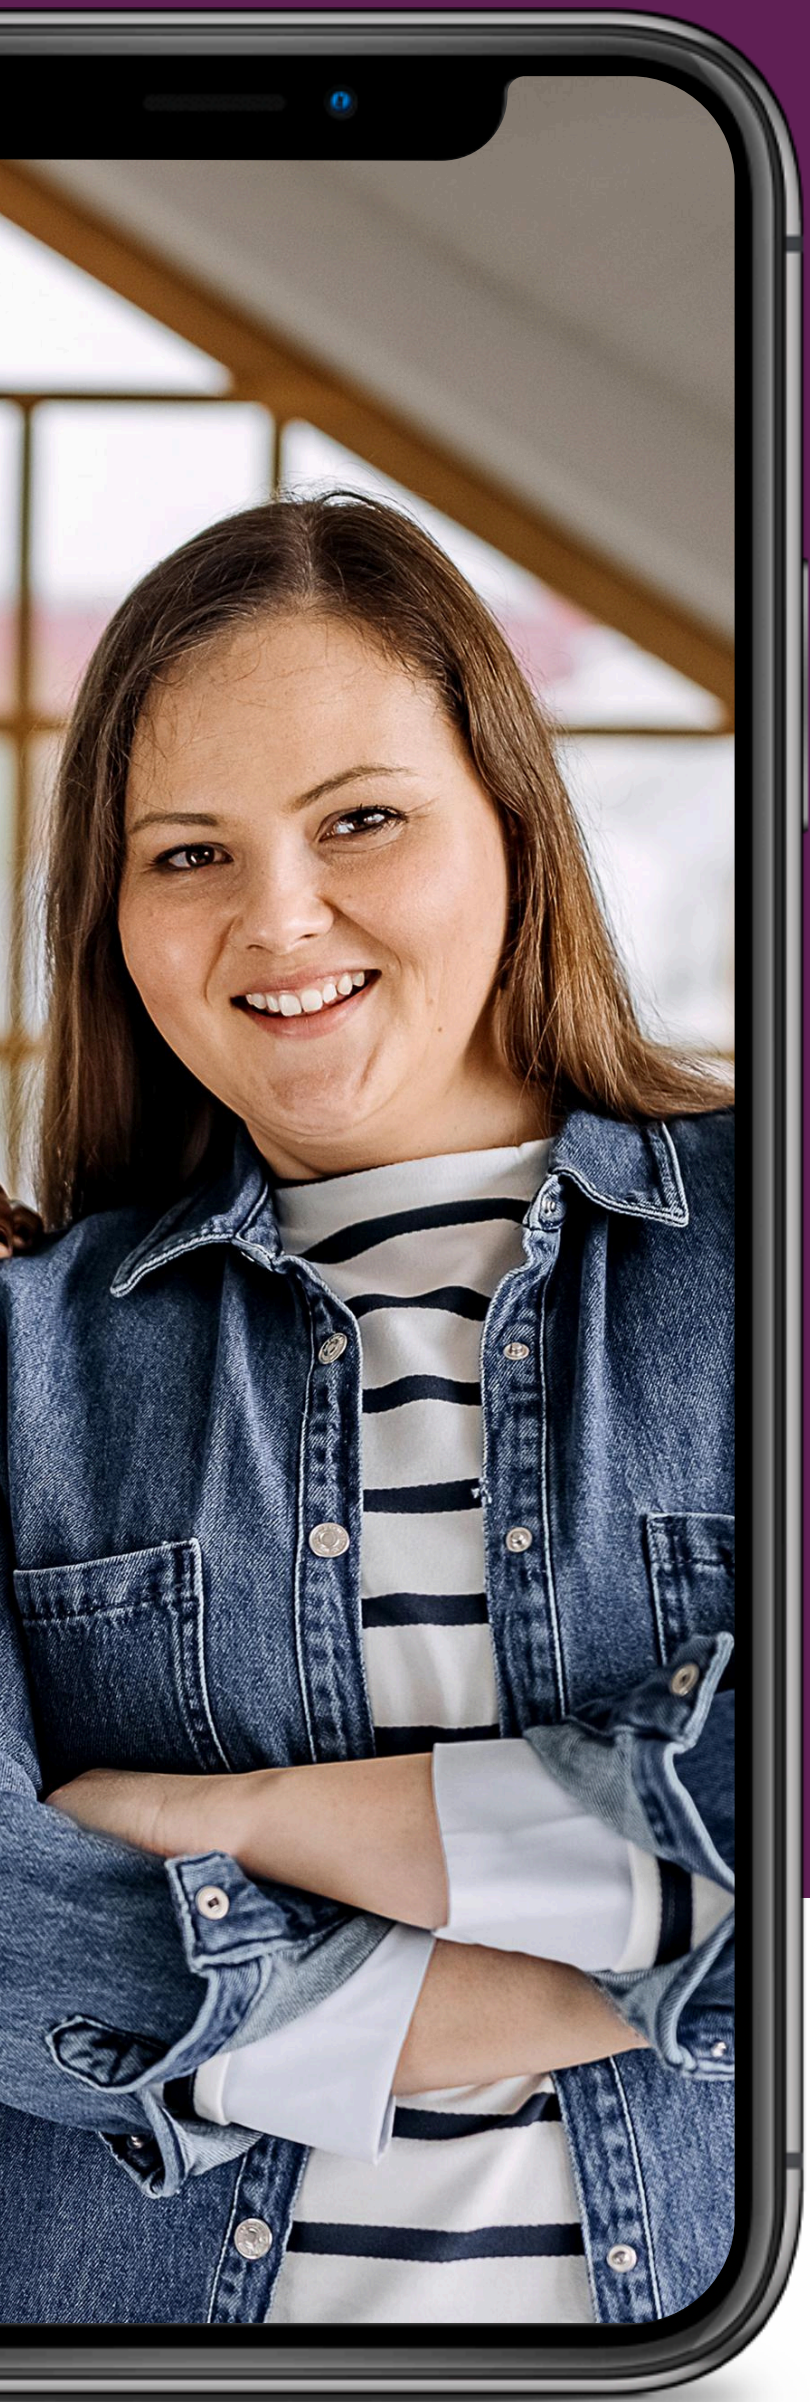

Show your support for obesity care coverage by pledging to:

- Recognize that obesity is a chronic disease that has a significant impact on women, particularly women of color
- Advocate for obesity care to be covered by insurance, just like any other chronic disease
- Fight stigma and discrimination against individuals living with obesity, especially women

LEARN MORE

Share Your Story

The EveryBODY Covered campaign wants to hear from you! Our campaign is embracing storytelling to share the authentic and nuanced stories of women impacted by obesity. Use any mobile device to tell us about your journey accessing coverage for obesity care.

RECORD HERE

Talk to Your Employer About Obesity Care Insurance Coverage

Many health insurance plans include barriers that place the full range of obesity care options, particularly medications, out of reach for many women. Less than half of employers currently cover or are considering covering the latest generation of anti-obesity medications. Use HealthyWomen's template letter to ask your employer for obesity care coverage.

Join our efforts to urge employers and elected officials to provide coverage for comprehensive obesity care—including medications.

JOIN NOW

everybody
covered a campaign by women
for obesity care coverage

everybodycovered.org

Urge Lawmakers to Pass the Treat and Reduce Obesity Act!

The Treat and Reduce Obesity Act (TROA) is bipartisan legislation that would provide Medicare beneficiaries with access to safe, effective and life-saving care for obesity.

The bill aims to better support older Americans living with obesity by expanding the type of healthcare professionals who can deliver intensive behavioral (IBT) therapy and allowing Medicare Part D to cover Food & Drug Administration (FDA)- approved obesity medications.

Lawmakers want to know how obesity-related barriers have impacted you to help them better understand the need for greater access to critical obesity care options.

Use our simple tool to instantly send a letter to your Representative and Senators letting them know you support TROA.

Consider personalizing the template with your obesity story to make an even greater impact.

TAKE ACTION
HERE

Have questions about the campaign?
Your feedback matters to us.